to pay dividends is driven by investor demand. Managers cater to investors by paying dividends when investors put a stock price premium on payers and not paying when investors prefer nonpayers. To test this prediction, we construct four time series measures of the investor demand for dividend payers.

A Catering Theory of Dividends - Baker - 2004 - The ...

I. A Catering Theory of Dividends The theory has three basic ingredients. First, it posits a source of uninformed investor demand for firms that pay cash dividends. Second, limits on arbitrage allow this demand to affect current share prices. Third, managers rationally weigh the short run benefits of catering to the current mispricing against the
